On arrival at Delhi's Indira Gandhi International Airport Tour Leader Carol will be anxiously waiting for you and will transfer you to your hotel.

New Delhi, the capital of India is a modern buzzing metropolitan city with remnants of the past strewn amongst the modern buildings. Much of New Delhi was planned by Sir Edwin Lutyen's, who laid out a grandiose central administrative area as a testament to British imperial pretensions. Delhi was established between 900 BCE and 1930. Delhi's famous "seven cities" range from the 12th century Quila Rai Pithora, built by Prithviraj Chauhan, to the imperial Shahjahanabad, constructed by the Mughals in the 17th century. Of the many attractions in Delhi, the major sites are the Rashtrapati Bhawan designed by Sir Edwin Lutyen's as the British Viceroy's Palace, Shahjahanabad (Old Delhi) where the Red Fort is, or Jama Masjid in the famed Chandni Chowk in the heart of Old Delhi.

Rashtrapati Bhawan (President House): The official residence of the President of India stands at the opposite end of the Rajpath from India Gate. Completed in 1929, the palace like building is an interesting blend of Mughal and western architectural styles, the most obvious Indian feature being the huge copper dome. Prior to independence this was the viceroy's residence.

Gurudwara Bangla Sahib: One of the most prominent Sikh Gurudwara or Temple, known for its association with the 08th Sikh Guru, Guru Har Krishan, as well as the pool inside its complex, known as the Sarovar. As with all Sikh Gurudwaras, the concept of Langar (Community Kitchen) is practiced, and all people, regardless of race or religion may eat in the Gurudwara kitchen (Langar hall). The Langar food is prepared by gursikhs (Sikh Devotees) who work there and by volunteers who like to help.

Humayun's Tomb: Humayun's tomb is a complex of buildings built as the Mughal Emperor Humayun's tomb, commissioned by Humayun's wife Hamida Banu Begum in 1562. It was the first structure to use red sandstone at such a scale. The complex was declared a UNESCO World Heritage Site in 1993

March 16: Delhi – Agra

This morning, we will be driven to Agra (Approximately 5 hours). Along the way we will have a visit to a wonderful conservation group Wildlife SOS <https://wildlifesos.org> who have been rescuing Indian Sloth Bears taken from the wild, their mothers killed, canines and claws painfully removed and then forced to live a terrible life of dancing on the streets with their “keepers” who made a living from them. Wildlife SOS, so importantly, also rescues, treats and cares for elephants exploited in the abusive tourist and “begging elephant” industries. Their aim is to help the elephants that are blind, elderly, wounded, malnourished and dehydrated and those being used illegally under deprived conditions. You will be enamored by these gentle giants that have lived a very sad life, now cared for and very much loved.

Agra: The city of Agra flourished under the patronage of the emperors Akbar, Jahangir and Shah Jahan and attracted artisans from Persia and central Asia. Agra is where Emperor Shah Jahan engraved his immortal love for his Empress in marble, the Taj Mahal. Agra is still famous for handicrafts products such as inlay work on marble, carpets, jewelry, zari and embroidery work.

Upon arrival, we will check in to the hotel and be treated to an afternoon visit to the Taj Mahal to view it by sunset.

March 18: Jaipur – Ranthambhore

This morning, we head to nature - Ranthambhore National Park! (Approximately 3hours' drive)

Ranthambhore: Tucked between the rugged Aravalli and Vindhya hills, the Ranthambhore National Park boasts a spectacular landscape filled with boulder-strewn highland plateaus, lakes and rivers - dotted with old forts and abandoned mosques - creating a wonderful atmosphere for both bird and mammal viewing. Ranthambhore is perhaps most famous for being one of the original 'Project Tiger' reserves and it still affords one of the best opportunities anywhere in India of seeing a tiger.

At the centre of the park lay the ruins of the 10th to 16th century Ranthambhore Fort which dominates the leafy forests from its perch atop a dramatic rocky outcrop.

Khem Villas: A luxurious camp that is designed to provide complete peace and tranquility. Built on open grassland, the owners planted indigenous trees and created beautiful water bodies creating a small natural habitat that is home to jackals, deer, hyenas and a number of bird species.

The accommodation here is environmentally sensitive and sound and great efforts have been made to use locally sourced materials and skills. Khem Villas serves only vegetarian food. Most of their produce is grown on the property itself. In the afternoon, we will visit Ranthambhore Fort. Occupying a prominent position atop a hill inside Ranthambhore National Park, this mighty fort has withstood several sieges and still stands. It was built in the 10th century and acted as great protection for the Rajput kings against foreign invaders. Visiting the fort is a fascinating experience as you can spot diverse fauna along the way. Moreover, several birds can be spotted at eye level as you slowly hike up.

Ranthambhore is one of India's finest examples of dry deciduous forest interspersed with grassland. It is where geographical zones merge and it is possible to see the tigers from the overhead area. The entire forest has scattered battlements and spill overs of the Ranthambhore Fort, where tigers are said to frequent the ruins.

Ranthambhore was declared a wildlife sanctuary in 1955 and was also one of the original Project Tiger Reserves. The mammalian diversity of the park mirrors its significance as a premier conservation site-apart from its flagship attraction, the forest is home to the leopard, sloth bear, jackal, and hyena among the carnivores, besides a wide variety of ungulates, the most prominent of which are the Nilgai, and the majestic Sambar Deer. Ornithologists have no cause for complaint as the woods and lakes shelter over 250 species of birds making it an important bird sanctuary.
